Hi, Amy!

Three exciting events are coming up in September, and we'd like to invite you and your group to take part in them. Here is your chance to share your interest in international development with the rest of the MIT community.

The fifth annual International Development Fair (IDF) will be held on September 29 from 1-3 pm in Lobby 13. Register to reserve display space at the Fair for your group by visiting the IDF website at <http://web.mit.edu/idf/form-idf.html>.

This year, the Fair will be part of International Development Week, and we encourage you to hold an event of your own during this time. The week will start with the Enterprise Forum's Global Entrepreneurship event in Kresge on the evening of September 21 and will culminate with IDF on the afternoon of September 29. We're ready to help you publicize your international development event on our website and posters. So sign up as soon as you can at <http://web.mit.edu/idf/form-idw.html>.

On September 28 we will be hosting the International Development Dinner. This event is for leaders of MIT groups that deal with international development, as well as supporters of MIT's involvement in international development work. One or two members of your group may sign up for the dinner at <http://web.mit.edu/idf/form-idf.html>.

Questions? Feel free to contact us at idn-contact@mit.edu.

As the International Development Network (IDN) Planning Team, our aim is to facilitate information sharing and collaboration within the MIT community for the purpose of highlighting MIT opportunities that deal with international development work. For more information, please check out the IDN website at <http://web.mit.edu/idn>, and let us know if there are additional ways you would like to get involved.

We look forward to working with you!
