

Interpreting the Report

The scores and charts on the first two pages show cumulative averages over 12 weeks of client responses to our per-ticket survey questions. Each ticket belongs to a specific queue, and scores are reported at the queue level on page 3. The IS&T level rolls up all the surveys; Service Desk rolls up many CSS queues; Call Center is a subset of that and excludes the Repair Center, which is shown on its own. For all the charts, the 12-week window rolls forward each week, and the scores are always across that window.

The multiline charts try to convey the rhythm of service performance over time and the relative levels of satisfaction by service dimension. A high-performing service would have all its lines flowing consistently at or above 4.5 and not too far apart from each other. Some queues have survey responses too intermittent to graph with weekly readings; those are show using only summary numbers for each dimension. The numbers are 12-week averages.

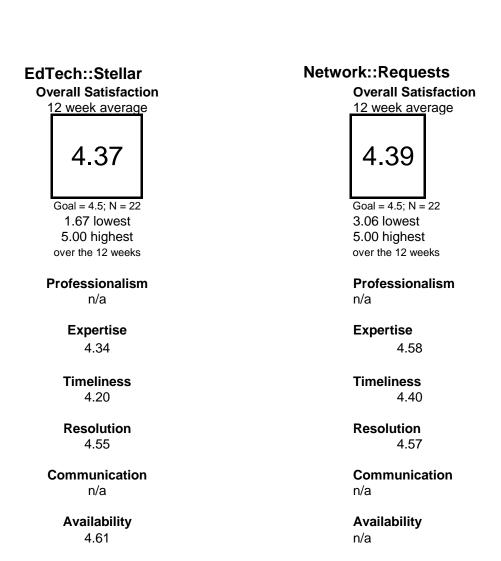

Detailed results by month by queue are shown on the third page showing up to 3 months and resetting at the beginning of the quarter. Color-

These Queues have low enough response rates per week that a weekly graph would be misleading.

All scores presented are a Quarterly average, to smooth out sparse data. Monthly detail appears in the table on the next page.

Note: the big box score of "Overall Satisfaction" refers to question 7 on the survey, not an aggregate of the other scores listed below.

				When I'm on hold, the announcement that I am on hold comes

		Network::Requests	1253341	0.83	(1) I would be more satisfied if I received any communication at all from the Network group. I paged on a Sunday afternoon about a full-building network outage, some forty minutes after filing a ticket and a few hours after the onset of the outage. I received absolutely no reply. No posting of the full-building outage was made on 3down, either during or after the outage. (2) I see now that my ticket was marked as resolved about two hours after its creation; I assume that network service had been restored at that time, though I did not verify this until about forty-five minutes later; I therefore assume that the staff were able to fix the issue. (3) Though a two-hour response time to a ticket would be good in most circumstances, I feel that a response time of more than an hour to a page is not entirely satisfactory. (4) The building in question had its network service restored, so that's okay. (5) As no communication was received, no explanation was possible. (6) This rela! tes to (3); I

4/22/2010	Help Desk::Call Center	1216389		What happened was that your staff was unable to solve the problem. But they were, as always, extremely nice, cooperative, friendly. Rather, I solved the problem with the help of my departmental wizard. Then, I wrote back to your staff telling them what the solution was to help in case there were future calls. Since you do not yet support iPad, your failure to know the answer was completely understandable. In the above survey I did not selected "very dissatisfied" for question 2. (about expertise) because "dissatisfied" has a decidedly negative connotation. I wasn't dissatisfied, after all. I asked for help they couldn't yet provide for perfectly good reasons. So I went elsewhere. But I would hardly want to say that I was "dissatisfied." I think it is terrific that your staff was

		1215751		The internet access in my office was cut off at 3 PM on a
				Friday before a holiday weekend. I had no idea why and was neither informed by email or telephone. I thought it was a problem with my network card. On Sunday I tried several methods to restore my internet, and changing my network card worked. Then on Tuesday my internet stopped working again. Only after contacting the IT of my department did I find out that I had a virus. IST could have told me the reason for my internet access being stopped and prevented me from all these

I wasn't entirely sure if the fix was covered under my warranty, how long it would take to fix etc. I was able to ask these questions but it would've been nic if this and other information was volunteered. But otherwise I was so happy with the help I was given. It was a huge relief th I didn't have to spend the time calling tech support and getting it fixed on my own. Neither I, my system administrator, nor anyone in my department was aware that the reduced level of backup was occurring with our subscription. It was not clear at all to us, and in fact we were never told that even Outlook will not be backed up if it isn't closed when TSM is running. It took me 4 days from the instigation of the trouble ticket to when I found this information out. While the response I got was professional, it came way too late for me to attempt to retrieve information from the crashed hard drive since I had already sent it back to Dell. Because of that, I've lost almost 10 years worth of work, and only the last 2 because I had a local hard drive back up. TSM was useless to me in regards to anything I cared about, and my department is now going with our own backup system that we know we can trust. I think that better c!

He has helped my office for other computer issues and we find him to be very 5.00 helpful, knowledgeable and to do a good job. With regards to this ticket. I'm Satisfied with the Outcome. However, the IST help desk personal that I interacted with three times in the past leaves great room for improvement. He was a bureaucrat that had the license for the MIT license agreements memorized and refused to listen to the customer. He even refused to provide his name so I could not file a formal compilaint against him. 1195505 4.17 I didn't get a direct answer to my question, but the tech was able to provide an alternative solution. 1195394 5.00 The IS&T team solved my problem, so I am of course very grateful, and that might contribute, in part, to the very high satisfaction ratings. But, even if they had not solved my problem, they were very professional, clear, and timely. Great					permanently at the top of the window as an indicator, so there
